SCHOOL OF PSYCHOLOGY RESEARCH SYMPOSIUM 2024

HIGHLIGHTS

We would like to extend a big thank you to everyone who joined us for our 2nd Annual Research Day that was held on March 7th, 2024. The event was attended by over 100 members of our community and featured over 50 posters from our graduate students and postdoctoral scholars. The day kicked off with an insightful symposium centred around the theme of 'Attention', chaired by PhD student Gabriel Byczynski. The symposium showcased the overlapping interests of many of our faculty working in the Trinity College Institute of Neuroscience and the Centre for Innovative Human Systems. Following a lively first poster session, we returned for a wonderful talk from the winner of the PhD Poster Prize 2023, Dr Feng Deng. This was followed by a series of fascinating short orals from research assistants, PhD students and postdocs on a range of topics spanning global health, reasoning, neuroscience and psychological health. Later in the day out faculty delved into the theme of Psychology in Healthcare, with talks from Dr Claire Howlin, Dr Siobhan Corrigan, Prof Sven Vanneste and Prof Richard Carson. The day concluded with a final poster session and a stimulating career panel where our faculty shared their academic journeys in a lively Q&A session. Thanks so much to all those that attended and big congrats to our winners of the poster prizes - Sharon Chi Tak Lee, Cliona O'Doherty and Gabriel Byczynski.

See you all next year!
